705
LOFT APARTMENTS

705 Lofts is an apartment community located in the heart of Seattle's CID. All units feature 9-foot ceilings, bay windows, fully equipped kitchens, and in-unit washer and dryers. The units are more spacious than typical apartments—700 square feet for a one-bedroom. Many units have downtown Seattle and Olympic mountain views. Enjoyed by mixed professionals and retired residents, it is a short walk to catch the light rail, the Sounder train, buses, and the First Hill Streetcar line.

Tai Tung is the oldest Chinese restaurant in Seattle since “Grandpa Quan” started it in 1935. Our prices are reasonable, we have a friendly atmosphere, and the wait staff is loyal—some have worked here as long as half a century! In addition, it is a place that holds fond memories for many. Multiple generations of patrons have had their first dates at Tai Tung, Bruce Lee had a favorite table there, and owner Harry Chan is a community fixture.

“Honey Court’s tasty dim sum is always fresh and hot,” said a loyal customer. “It also has unique items, such as steamed spareribs with rice in a pot, which others don’t have.” Its customized seafood dinner is yummy, consisting of stewed chicken with ginseng, roast squab, lobster, steamed fish, Peking duck, live prawns, free-range chicken, geoduck, and steamed eel with black bean sauce. Customers have raved about the new beautiful design and artwork in the restaurant.

“We work hard to give the best dim sum to our customers—fresh and top-quality ingredients, 43 varieties, and the fastest take-out service,” said owner Amy Eng. You can buy as little as one item or as many as you want. Prices start at 70 cents. Dim Sum King sells over 1,000 humbobs a day. Our customers give us 4- and 5-star ratings. We also sell wholesale to many Asian restaurants in Seattle and Bellevue.

Joyale offers two things that most ID restaurants don't—free parking and seating for over 500 people. You don't need to wait long for dim sum on weekends for seats. It's ideal for large groups of friends to meet. Our dim sum is modestly priced and our kitchen is equipped to serve any style of cooking for your favorite seafood entrees and other cuisine. It is a family business. Joyale and Joy are sisters, and Joy owns Joy Palace Restaurant on Martin Luther King Way South.

A group of diverse artists volunteered to do murals at Jade Garden. Since then, it has created a movement for other artists to volunteer to paint murals on other Chinatown storefronts. Our restaurant has thrived since reopening, thanks to you. Please bring your friends and family to Jade Garden, and enjoy our dim sum.

"It has been a harsh year for our restaurant since the pandemic," said owner Eric Chan, "including vandalism and break-ins. But the kindness and support of the community are inspiring and have made us proud."

“Our dim sum is fresh and hot because we make it when you order,” said owner Ben. After asking his workers to stay home for safety reasons for a year, Hong Kong Bistro is open again for dine-in, not just take-out. Ben requires his staff of over 40 people to be inoculated. He said his restaurant’s front section and door are sanitized every day. The Bistro serves Hong Kong-style Chinese food, and adds new menu items every season.
